copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

Snow-capped mountains remind us of the coal bin—Waterbury Record.

Also of what might have been—if we didn't have to fill our bins so often.

The Rendering company paid its $3,000 fine for contempt with wonderful alacrity, but it may as well be understood that Attorney General Pitts is not yet through with the company.

The proposition to invest the unexpected balance from the $5,000 appropriation for a silver service for the battleship Vermont, for a library for the ship, has received a very severe setback. Senator Proctor writes the Barre Times that "the government furnishes every ship with a good and sufficient library, very carefully selected and ample for the wants of both officers and men." It looks as if the balance of the appropriation, over $1,000, is in great danger of being turned back into the state treasury—Northfield News.

This is the kind of danger that we court. The more of it the better.

Now that public curiosity has been satisfied, the newspaper correspondents allowed to see Mrs. Eddy and prove to their own satisfaction that she is alive and able to be up, walk a few steps and able to go driving, she should be allowed to continue the privacy a feeble old woman of 85 is entitled to. Mrs. Eddy is no better or no worse than could be expected in a woman who has reached her age. That Mrs. Eddy could not possibly manage the great diversity of business interests that fall to the consideration of the Christian Science movement was clearly evident to the correspondents who saw her at Concord Tuesday, and the efforts of those who surround her to convey the impression she does is an effort at deception that is not a credit to the movement.

If Mr. Hearst is to be believed, he is the only honest newspaper owner in New York—all others are spurious. And yet it has been shown that Mr. Hearst's court process exactly like John D. Rockefeller; that his newspaper corporations follow the same crooked trail that Standard Oil follows; that Mr. Hearst utilizes a New Jersey charter to evade the laws of New York, just as other trusts do; that his corporations dodge their taxes by manipulating the books precisely like the rest of that brood, and also that Mr. Hearst and his corporation lawyer try to cover up his record by means of misrepresentation and vilification. What a wicked lot the other newspaper men must be if he is the only honest one! But seriously, Mr. Hearst's candidacy for governor of that state has its good points. The Times does not believe the state would benefit by his election, but his selection as the Democratic candidate forced the Republicans to put forward the best man they could find, in the person of Mr. Hughes.

SPITTING ON SIDEWALKS.

Senator Howland's measure to prohibit spitting on sidewalks and on the floors of public buildings, introduced in the Vermont legislature Tuesday, is one of the most important that will come before the present law-makers for consideration. Vermont already has a statute which forbids expectoration in street cars, railroad cars and in stations. Its intent is good, as the intent of Senator Howland's bill is also good, the latter being a step in advance of the present statute. Who has not passed down a street and noted in disgust the traces of expectoration on the sidewalks? And who has not with the same feeling seen the dresses of women trailing along the walk, sweeping up every accumulation in its path? And who has not revolted at the swiftness of people who follow the loathsome habit of spitting on the public walks? And who has not protested against the utter disregard of cleanliness shown by some wearers of skirts? Legislation as to the length of women's skirts being out of the question, there yet remains the possibility of making our sidewalks clean. We may be able to teach women the foolishness of their ways in the trailing-skirt matter, at least we hope so. Meanwhile, let us by legislative precept teach everyone the desirability and necessity of keeping the sidewalks clean.

The chief consideration tending to this desirability and necessity is, of course, that of the public health. A great deal of the disease with which civilized mankind is afflicted now spreads through disregard of proper measures for safeguarding ourselves. Take the one disease, tuberculosis. A communicable disease, it is transmitted largely through the sputum of those having the germ in their systems. This sputum, deposited on sidewalks and on floors of public buildings is swept up by the clothing and transferred to the homes, where, drying, it gives off its deadly

WHY WASTE MONEY?

Much Money Is Wasted on Skeleton Recipes.

A skeleton recipe, that is to say, one giving only the ingredients, causes a great many inexperienced housekeepers to lose money by wasting valuable cooking material. Avoid the waste by getting your cooking recipes from the household department of the Boston Daily Globe. Globe recipes are written by women who will explain just how to put the ingredients together.

Order the Boston Globe delivered regularly at your home.

A Movable OIL HEATER

A movable Oil Heater is just the thing when the heating of a room is desired in a very short time in which guests are to be entertained.

When a warm bed room or bath room is wanted upon short notice there is no carrying in of coal hods or carrying out of ashes, you simply light the stove and it is going and no waiting for the fire to get started.

All our heaters are equipped with a patent wick raising device which give an even flame all the time.

They come in four sizes and range from $3.50 to $5.00.

germs to the immediate danger of the members of the household. Recognizing this condition, we must recognize the need of care in the matter of expectoration. The two considerations—that of health and that of cleanliness—ought to prompt us to the passage of such an act as proposed by Senator Howland. Massachusetts has a similar statute, but it must be admitted that it has been more or less of a dead letter until recently. Give us a law of this nature and then let us enforce it.

Employer's Liability.

"S. 13," the bill before the General Assembly this session, has no such idea in mind. It is a statute that has a practical history, having come to us from the English. It is in successful operation in the state of Massachusetts and elsewhere and cannot be a very radical or pernicious proposition when an attorney stated before the committee that it was more for the interests of the employer than the employee. It does, however, contain some provisions of importance that differ from common law. In the first place, it seriously impairs the fellow-servant doctrine that has been a pet refuge of railroads in Vermont for many years. The third provision of the first section allows damages to be recovered for death or injury caused by "the negligence of a person in the service of the employer who was in charge or control of a signal, switch, locomotive engine or train upon a railroad." This specifically covers the cases of at least two collisions on the Rutland, one of which is in litigation now, and would probably meet all cases of a similar character where the employee injured was not at fault. The bill provides for degrees of culpability, damages being assessable according to the blame that may attach to the employer or his agent. Defects in machinery are pretty well covered by common law and are further indicated in a specific way by the first section of the bill in question which allows the employee to recover for a "defect in the condition of the ways, works or machinery" of his employer, the result of negligence. The bill, however, does not touch one of the most vital points contented for by organized labor, that is, the well-accepted doctrine that the negligence of an employee, however slight, invalidates his claim for damages. This may be a subject for special legislation later on. There can be very little urged in law against this proposed statute as it would not help a man hurt by a buzz planer, for example, by any dangerous machine whose nature was well known and the risk of which the employee took upon himself voluntarily. As it stands, the bill seems so eminently fair to both sides that the Journal is free to urge its passage upon the general assembly at this time.—Montpelier Journal.

COMMITMENTS INCREASE.

22 More Prisoners Sent to House of Correction in October Than September.

Rutland, Nov. 1.—There were 57 committed to the house of correction during the month of October. This is an increase of 20 over the preceding month. There were 29 unfortunates sent to the county jail, which is also an increase over September.

The offenses for the house of correction commitments are as follows: Intoxication, 24; breach of the peace, 3; assault, 2; refusing to support family, 3; grand larceny, 2; petit larceny, 4; burglary, 2; tramping, 3; illegally selling mortgaged property, 2; vagrancy, 2; embezzlement, 1.

July 13, 1887, an account was opened in the Granite Savings Bank and Trust Company with an initial deposit of $1. Jan. 2, 1888, a deposit of $20 was made. March 14, 1888, $20; July 2, 1888, $10; and March 6, 1889, $150—a total of five deposits amounting to $220. After March 1889, no deposit was made. This book was presented for payment a few days ago and the amount paid was $420.98, the accumulated interest amounting to $200.98.

This is a good illustration of the earning power of money when deposited in a Savings Bank and Trust Company. Such an institution not only offers a safe place for the deposit of money, but it pays a rate of interest that will largely increase the principal if account is allowed to remain undisturbed a period of years. The young man who begins today to deposit a fixed proportion of his earnings in the Granite Savings Bank and Trust Company will be in a position to take advantage of opportunity when it comes to him. If you are not now a depositor in the "Granite," may we not suggest that there is no time like the present? And that money deposited on or before November 6 will draw interest at 3½ per cent from November 1.

Striving always by courteous treatment and careful attention to detail to merit the patronage of the public with a record of twenty-one years of successful business and with the largest capital and surplus for the protection of depositors of any savings bank in Barre, we feel justified in earnestly soliciting your account.

Cotton Paper.
 Some recent experiments have demonstrated that all grades of paper can be manufactured from cotton stalks and in addition to this a variety of byproducts, including alcohol, cotton fiber and smokeless powder, can be secured in commercial quantities. On the estimate that an acre of land producing a field of cotton will also produce one ton of stalks, 10,000,000 or 12,000,000 tons of raw material can be depended upon annually. Some enthusiasts claim that in addition to increasing the value of the south's annual cotton crop by $100,000,000 the removal of the stalks from the fields early in the fall will mean the extermination of the boll weevil.—Farming.

City Without Fires.
 Cardiff, Wales, a city with 105,000 inhabitants, has such thorough protection from fires, according to United States Consul Daniel W. Williams, that there is very little demand for appliances to extinguish them. All the public buildings, many hotels and large residences are supplied with appliances for prevention and early discovery which are frequently tested, those at the theaters being tested every night. In consequence of wholesome building rules and the street fire regulations there were only 123 fires in 1905. Of these only five were serious and not one was caused by a defective fuse.

An Old Cent.
 A Massachusetts cent dated 1788 was found on a mountain in Bolton, Vt., a short time ago by a driver of a team belonging to W. H. Stevens of that town. The coin was uncovered by one of the horses' feet. No road has ever been in the place where it was found, so the circumstance of its discovery was very peculiar. Besides the date on the back of the cent is the word "Massachusetts" in a circle, with the cut of an eagle and the words "one cent" in the center.

Cork For Insulating.
 A new insulating material has recently been invented by a Portuguese firm of cork merchants. It has for its principal component granulated cork and is called corticite. Its application is unlimited, for it will resist the cold of a Siberian winter and the rays of a tropical sun; also the attacks of insects, even the white ant being powerless against it. As a nonconductor of sound it should be useful in city flats. On boiler tubes and boilers it is said to reduce the temperature of the boiler room to an agreeable one. It is not inflammable and may be generally adopted for partitions and linings of houses. Bricks and slabs of corticite are made for this purpose and can be sawed and bored like wood. It would seem to possess special advantages for use on warships, taking the place of wood as far as possible.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.
